

PROHIBITION IS MAJOR ISSUE IN COMING ELECTION

Republican Nominee Is Definitely Committed To The Outlawry of Liquors

ON RECORD AS SUCH

Hoover Believes He Has Made Definite Stand For Drys

Copyrighted 1928—by International News Service

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 13—Herbert Hoover, dry; Alfred E. Smith, wet!

For the first time since its adoption eight years ago, prohibition today, became a major issue in a presidential election with Herbert Hoover, the republican nominee, definitely committed to the outlawry of intoxicating liquors. The issue will be joined ten days hence, when Governor Alfred E. Smith, the democratic nominee, declares himself for liberalization of the Volstead act.

Hoover today stood on record as opposed to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, as pledged to efficient enforcement of the Volstead act, as opposed to nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment through liberalization of the Volstead Act and as pledged to the correction of all abuses of the prohibition statutes.

In drafting this stand on prohibition for his acceptance speech, international news service learned on the highest authority, Hoover believed he was "burning all his bridges behind him" so far as prohibition is concerned. The Republican nominee believed he had definitely committed himself to the dry side of the prohibition question. That, at least, was his purpose, according to unimpeachable authority.

The nominee, however, did not and does not desire to battle out the campaign on the prohibition issue. He looks upon prohibition as a "great moral experiment," as he has publicly stated, and feels it should be decided as a non-partisan basis and not as a part of any political campaign. The Republican nominee does not look upon the Volstead act as "perfect." He feels there should be an impartial investigation of prohibition, its problems and abuses, methods of enforcement and means of correcting abuses. When the "facts" are learned, he is ready to have a new enforcement act placed on the statute books which will carry out the purpose of the Eighteenth Amendment—namely, the prohibition of the sale, manufacture, transportation of intoxicating liquors.

State News

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 13—(INS)—It's no longer called a barber business; it's strictly "beauty culture."

With the passing of the "gaboon" and barber shop loafers which came about when the women stormed and crashed the gates of this masculine retreat, went even its familiar title. The barbers who were, are not tonorial artists.

A local barber was asked recently how the "barber business" was getting along. Insulted and peeved, the tonorial artist shot back, "Don't call it 'barber business.' It's, a-ah, it's beauty culture."

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 13—(INS)—William M. Hain, chairman of the Department Transportation Committee, advises that members of the State Transportation Committee of the American Legion of Pennsylvania have been attending mass-meetings of Legionnaires and their families who are interested in attending the tenth annual national convention which will be held at San Antonio, Texas, October 8 to 12.

Where a minimum of 25 reservations are received Pullman cars will be set in at various towns. These cars will be attached to regular trains and brought to junction points where the official trains will be made up.

Those eligible to go on the tour and benefit from the one fare for the round trip are Legionnaires, Sons of Legionnaires, Sons of Members of Auxiliary, Widows of Deceased Legionnaires, members of Auxiliary, Daughters of Legionnaires and daughters of members of the Auxiliary.

Souderton Borough Given Offer For Electric Plant

SOUDERTON, Aug. 13.—Borough Council is holding under advisement an offer to sell the municipal electric power and distribution system at a price of $150,000. The offer was received from Philadelphia engineers.

Besides submitting a price for the system, the engineers submitted proposed schedules of rates, under the terms of which some of the larger users of current would save from 22 to 48 per cent.

The offer also includes an agreement to maintain a fire alarm system and traffic lights. This proposal is one of several which the local councilmen have received during the past year. Prices offered previously varied from $100,000 to $112,000.

Saturday Evening Card Party Was Fine Success

The peach festival held by the members of the Bristol Court of the Catholic Daughters of America on the lot at Spruce and Buckley streets on Saturday was a decided success socially and financially.

Mrs. Helen McDonald received the $2.50 gold prize.

The committee wishes to thank the public who so generously helped to make the affair such a complete success.

AMERICAN ATHLETES NOW ENROUTE TO U. S.

Queen Wilhelmina Attends Olympic Finals; Presents Medals to Winners

AMERICA — 22 PRIZES

By Frederick K. Abbott

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13—With most of the athletes who contested in the Olympic Games on their way home, this city settled down to normal life today. Most of the Americans had already departed, some having gone to London to take part in the dual meet with the British Olympic team. From London the Americans go to Stockholm on their barnstorming tour.

The Olympiad officially came to a close yesterday. Queen Wilhelmina attended the closing session and received a tremendous ovation.

The equestrian competitions were among the final events on the program, Holland and Poland being tied for first place.

The last event was obstacle jumping, Spain getting first. The American contestants in this event were eliminated after the first round.

Prize winners of all nations lined up on the field at the end of the day's program to receive their honors. The American contingent consisted of 35 persons, 12 of them women. Queen Wilhelmina, herself, handed out the medals. The United States got 22 first prizes.

The majority of the National delegations were satisfied since 31 nations were represented in the prize list. The United States carried away more first prizes than the next two nations combined. These nations were Germany with 11 firsts and Finland with eight.

The biggest upset was the failure of the American track men to win as many events as they had hoped for. American boxers also failed to win a single championship.

Steps are being taken to insure better judging in future Olympic boxing contests. Otherwise several nations will probably refuse to enter boxing teams.

The judging was so faulty that a story is going round that one judge admitted he had never seen a boxing match before. This story is generally credited.

It is believed that a movement is afoot to insure more efficient starters for future track events even if they are so-called professionals.

There is belief in some quarters that a majority of the Olympic difficulties which bob up anew every four years could be eliminated if the Olympic games were given a permanent home somewhere in Europe. It is probable, however, that this idea will fail to make much headway owing to the competition of various cities to get this premier sporting event.

All that is necessary on the part of the lads, is that they be prompt, assembling at the place mentioned by 1:30 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

New Dyeing Plant Now In Operation At Doylestown

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 13.—One of the most unique industries in this community, now in complete operation, is the Bitzer dry cleaning and dye works, the only business of its kind in Bucks county. The plant is located at State road, less than one-half mile west of the entrance to National Farm School. Hundreds of suits of clothes and dresses are brought in from a radius of eighteen miles to the local plant and all of them leave packed in individual carriers bearing the name of Doylestown and the Bitzer firm.

At the present time the plant can handle 300 suits of clothes daily in addition to 75 dresses. Trucks transport the articles to the plant here from various sections of Bucks and Montgomery counties.

Since starting operations several weeks ago, the business of the Bitzer plant has been increasing daily.

"We invite the people of Doylestown to visit us and inspect our modern plant," said Mr. Bitzer yesterday. "We are proud of it and I am sure Doylestown and Bucks county will appreciate another new business enterprise that is worth while."

Report Attempt Made To Kidnap Rich Oil Magnate

PARIS, Aug. 13—(INS)—A sensational report that an attempt was made to "kidnap" Henry M. Blackmer, rich American oil magnate and missing teapot dome witness, was circulated here today.

The foreign office at the present time has under consideration a request from Washington for the extradition of Blackmer, who is wanted to answer a charge of perjury in connection with his income tax statements in Colorado.

According to the report Blackmer was invited to dine on a yacht flying the United States flag. At the last moment while he was stepping into a launch to go to the yacht, one of his two body guards warned him that there might be a plot and prevented him from boarding the boat.

According to the newspaper press, the yacht was owned by enemies of Blackmer who intended to carry him to the United States once he was on board.

Party of Five Still Are Missing; Caught In Gale

NEW YORK, Aug. 13—(INS)—A small motorboat containing three men and two women today was reported missing off the Jersey coast after the roaring mid-summer gale which lashed the seaboard from Chesapeake Bay to Sandy Hook.

The party left Island Beach, near Toms River, shortly before the storm broke, about midnight Saturday. Nothing has been heard of the craft, though marine men at Island Beach expressed confidence that the party found shelter somewhere along shore.

The storm, striking inland in places but skirting New York, left one dead, and coast guardsmen reported approximately one hundred rescues.

George Hopman, Jersey City fireman, was killed by a blown-down electric wire as he was stepping into a cab in front of his home.

The gale was the tail end of the tropical hurricane which swept Florida earlier in the week. Along the Maryland coast the wind attained a velocity of 70 miles an hour.

"HORSE FLESH IS SCARCE, AND FLESH OF ANIMAL IS EXTREMELY CHEAP," SAYS JOHN R. WILLIAMS

Horse-flesh is scarce! Horse-flesh is cheap!

The above is the contention of John R. Williams, Bath Road, who for years has been hauling from the many farms in Bucks County and a section of New Jersey the carcasses of animals that have ceased to be of use to the owners.

Due to the inroads made by motor-driven vehicles, both for pleasure purposes and for business operations, the equestrian animals find their period of usefulness passing away. Tractors and other similar machines have caused a smaller horse buying market among the farmers, while everywhere is the demand for pleasure cars for all purposes. With the smaller number of horses used in the various capacities the death-rate is noticeably lower, making the vast change.

"There are only about one-third the number of horses we are asked to take care of in comparison to the work we used to do in this line," he remarked in talking of his business.

About 12 years ago and for some time previous to that period, the number of bodies taken to the "workshop" of Mr. Williams was 25 and more per week. Now the number has dropped to seven and eight for each weekly period.

"Sometimes during the year when the weather and conditions about the farms were hard on these draught-

When asked about prices for the carcasses the Bristol Township resident stated that during the world war one cent per pound was received for the hide and cast-off parts of a dead horse. This has now dropped to one-half cent per pound. Hides in those days were valued at $9 to $10, while today the sum of $7 is paid for each.

"Without the hides of the one-time much valued horse the shoe business would be greatly handicapped," he continued. "We used to sell the shank bone to the button factories, recycling for this about $45 a ton. The bone was likewise used for making handles for knives. Little call is received for this just now though."

The hoofs and portions of the sinew and some other sections of the animal are used, glue ingredients being extracted. Mr. Williams at one time found a ready market for these products with a mineral rendering company in Philadelphia, and products of this sort are still bought by them.

For years Mr. Williams, who has been operating in this locality, had many calls from all section of Bucks county, going as far to the north as Mechanicsville, and likewise sections of New Jersey, including the towns of Collingswood and Mt. Holly.

THRILLS GALORE AS CANOE RACES FINISH CLOSE

Bauer and Fogley Win Novelty Canoe Event After Chase

MISS YATES A WINNER

Swims of Various Lengths Attract Many Participants

By T. M. Juno

One of the largest crowds to witness any aquatic sport held in Bristol, turned out Saturday afternoon to attend the Elks' annual water carnival. Threatening weather failed to hinder the immense throng that swarmed the esplanade bordering the Delaware River, and the entire three balconies on the Elks' water front. Some of the spectators even went so far as to hire boats and canoes and sat in them as the events took place.

From 2:30 p. m. when Harry Arnold shot the gun starting the juniors' 50 yard swim until 5 p. m., when the motor boat race ended the day's events, the crowd was in a turmoil watching the close races and the clever diving exhibitions.

The first event, the Junior 50 yard swim, was captured by Thomas Barrett, who took the lead immediately after he dove from the yacht of Clarence Winter. Barrett was higher scorer among the Junior boys, also getting second place in the diving contest.

The second event, men's 100 yard swim, was won by another Barrett, John, bigger brother of Thomas, who captured this race, after several competitors had dropped out. John also finished first in the across the river swim doing this in 5 minutes and fifty seconds. The two first places gave John the individual honors among the men.

Bessie McGinley captured the first girls' event, the 100 yarder. She was closely pressed by Katherine Sells. In the diving contest for girls the honors were just the opposite, McGinley second and Sells first.

The boys' junior diving contest along with the men's diving contest, won the hearts of the throng. Cheer after cheer arose as the divers glided over swan dives or hurtled over and over in difficult somersaults. Joey Roe won this junior event while Charles Ancker finished first in the senior class.

The canoe races were all close and thrilling. The first canoe race, the in and out race for two persons, was a walk-away for Frank Smith and Fletcher Holland, who seemed to have their act of jumping out of the canoe and then hopping in again, down pat. A few competitors in this event upset their canoes and had a hard job getting them back to position.

Albert Bauer and Dayton Fogley were given a tough chase before winning the novelty canoe race. Alice Yates and Bessie McGinley made a gallant try but were barely nosed out.

Miss Yates won the across the river swim for girls. Her time was six minutes.

After the races the spectators were treated to some diving exhibitions by members of the Penn A. C. club of Philadelphia.

Professional entertainment and dancing with plenty of refreshments balanced the rest of the night.

The committee in charge, Harry Arnold, Charles Hellyer, Fred Kenyon, Sam Pearson and Warren Snyder, are to be complimented on their wonderful work. Everything came out nice and smooth and there were no mix-ups.

Believe Message Signed "Roald Amundsen" A Hoax

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 13—(INS)—A bottle was washed ashore today at Rotterdam, Rotterdam Island, containing a message signed "Roald Amundsen," but it is believed to be a hoax.

The message in the bottle follows: "Latham one point seven points 28 degrees 25 minutes east. Roald Amundsen."

Belief that the message is false was based upon the fact that the writer failed to give both latitude and longitude. It is thought that Amundsen would have specified his position exactly if he had actually written the note.

The explorer was in a French Latham seaplane when he disappeared with five companions in June.

GREAT IS CONCEPT

What's in a name?

"Most everything, if not everything," says Premier Mussolini, of Italy. It is H. Duce who understands the mystic and fateful import of names. That he attaches great significance to the name is quite apparent from his latest edict commanding Italian parents to give their babies "honest, sound, acceptable fascist names."

The grave statesman of the fascists henceforth will exercise a careful supervision over the naming of Italian children, to the end that all christenings will meet with the government's approval. All names that are "subversive" are to be taboo.

Woe to the Roman mother who names her child Cato, or Brutus or Garibaldi—for these names smack of liberty and popular rights. By the same token other names will receive the government's stamp of approval. Caesar would do, Machiavelli would be better, Borgia and Nero are both splendid, but Mussolini best and most luminous of all.

It is plain that the tyrant in "the boot" is ignorant of Shelley's lines "Human pride is skillful to invent most serious names to hide its ignorance," and of that Shakespearean couplet:

"What's in a name? that which we call a rose,
By any other name would smell as sweet."

It is of such as he that Tacitus said, "through superstition of a name," and Thomas Campbell, in his "Pleasures of Hope," wrote, "Who hath not owned, with rapture-smitten frame, the power of grace, the magic of a name."

But when Mussolini prohibited giving "the names of illustrious people" to foundings he showed treasonable disrespect for Romulus, mythical founder of Rome, who was a founding.

RAILROADS SEE PROSPERITY

The nature of their business makes railroad men reserved optimists. Their predictions as to tomorrow's business are always conservative. They cannot go out and make business as can others in ordinary business and industry. They must wait until business needs the services of the transportation they provide. No factory ever started up because there happened to be an empty box car on its siding. But some have closed down because cars were not there.

Railroad men of today are as conservative as early railroad builders were extravagant and reckless. Their industry requires a tremendous investment and constant use of capital in replacement of worn-out rolling stock and track. Hence, they want to see a reasonable amount of business ahead before they are willing to make any predictions as to the future.

Having made their look ahead for the last five months of 1928 railroad officials pronounce themselves satisfied with the prospects. They predict a considerable increase in car movements during the third quarter of the year. As this estimate is based on the best information obtainable by competent and conservative experts it is safe to accept their conclusion.

Here is another convincing bit of evidence that business is on the upgrade with prospects of greater activity and possibly a new record in the last half of the year.

Man has conquered the air. The young lady at the piano next door hasn't.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

What nearly resulted in a tragedy in this section occurred in July, 1878, according to an issue of the Intelligencer of that year, which told of Albert Heeder narrowly escaping drowning. The youth had rowed in a boat to a pier near New Hope and was seized with cramps. Calls for assistance brought his companions, and he was later revived.

Members of the Quakertown School board were divided on the question of electing a principal for the borough schools. Other teachers elected were Mrs. Lizzie Edmunds, Sarah Wetzel, William Muninger, Oliver Christman and E. H. Strawn. The candidates for the principalship were A. A. Campbell and William H. Walker.

Alfred Blaker, Newtown, who was at the head of the agricultural works at that place, received painful cuts and bruises about the head and limbs as the result of falling from the wagon used in delivering the implements, when one of the horses hitched to it became scared and started to run away.

William Albright, son of Charles D. Albright Hilltown, was graduated with the third highest honors from the Central High School, Philadelphia.

A fire, believed to have been caused by tramps, completely destroyed a hay house on the farm of C. N. Taylor, Bristol township. The building contained about four tons of hay and straw belonging to J. M. Boileau. The building was erected about a year before its destruction of timber salvaged from the Centennial buildings in Philadelphia.

About 300 pupils of the Bristol public schools attended the annual picnic in Tomlinson's woods. The program consisted of spelling and geographical matches, declamations and recitations and singing. The spelling match was won by Jennie Fenton, a high school student.

Residents of the Hatfield section were speculating upon the discovery of a cave along the banks of the Nesquehanna creek in that section. The discovery was made by a son of Septimus Evans, Jr., who was walking along the stream on the farm belonging to Jacob Bachman. The cave was neatly excavated and contained some implements for digging earth, a rudely constructed chair and some pins driven into the sides, upon which it was believed the inhabitants hung their clothes. Many of the people of that section believed the cave had been made for the purpose of concealing stolen articles.

In columns of the Newtown Enterprise of August 12, 1893, were found the following:

Capt. A. A. Slack and son, Leonard, were at the World's Fair.

The Barclay Family, of Northampton and Southampton held their annual reunion at the home of Abram Barclay.

Patrick Barrett, of Mechanics' Valley, had been appointed government storekeeper by Collector Doyle of this district.

PROHIBITION

With the law back of us and with Government co-operation, we have no difficulty in enforcing prohibition among our men, and if all employers would take it upon themselves to do likewise, we are sure that the burdens of enforcement would be greatly lightened.

Prohibition is a fine thing. I believe it will become world-wide. Alcohol destroys the brain cells and lowers a man's efficiency. I believe that industrial competition will force prohibition upon the whole world.

—Henry Ford.

SWEETER, WHITER CLOTHES WITH LASTING SUDS

Says Miss Anna Hoffman,
Of 729 Mansion Street

"No wonder so many women in Bristol are using Rinso. I have never used a laundry soap that gives such wonderful results as Rinso. Some of the family wash consists of greasy work shirts and it's marvelous how Rinso soaks out the dirt and cuts the grease. On very soiled collars and cuff edges I find that all that's necessary is to sprinkle Rinso on the soiled parts and then soak and rinse thoroughly. Rinso makes plenty of suds that are creamy and lasting. I can say that Rinso is a great time saver, too, on washday. And best of all—this soap washes clothes sweet and clean and makes them nice and white. I use Rinso for dishwashing also and am glad to say I find it easy on my hands. I can't praise Rinso too highly." (Signed) Miss Anna Hoffman, 729 Mansion Street, Bristol, Pennsylvania.

Time and Work Saver

Dirt and stains soak right out with Rinso, the "no-work" granulated soap—leaving the clothes whiter than you've ever seen them! In tub or machine, Rinso is all you need—no bar soaps, chips or powders. Recommended by the makers of 34 leading washers for safety. Try Rinso today—get the BIG package.—(Adv.)

ITEMS OF INTEREST AS CLIPPED FROM NEWSPAPER FILES

L. W. Danenhower and wife, of Southampton, were thrown from their carriage but fortunately escaped without serious injury.

Broadway Hostesses---and Their Nemesis

Somewhat Helen Morgan (left) and Texas Guinan, rival night club hostesses, always managed to get the better of any argument with a mere male over the prohibition question. But when a woman took the trail it was a different story. Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt (center), assistant attorney-general in charge of dry violation cases, promptly caused these two shining lights of the Gay White Way to be indicted and announced she will press their prosecution.

"SAMMY" MOFFO PLANS RETURN TO THE RING

By T. M. Juno

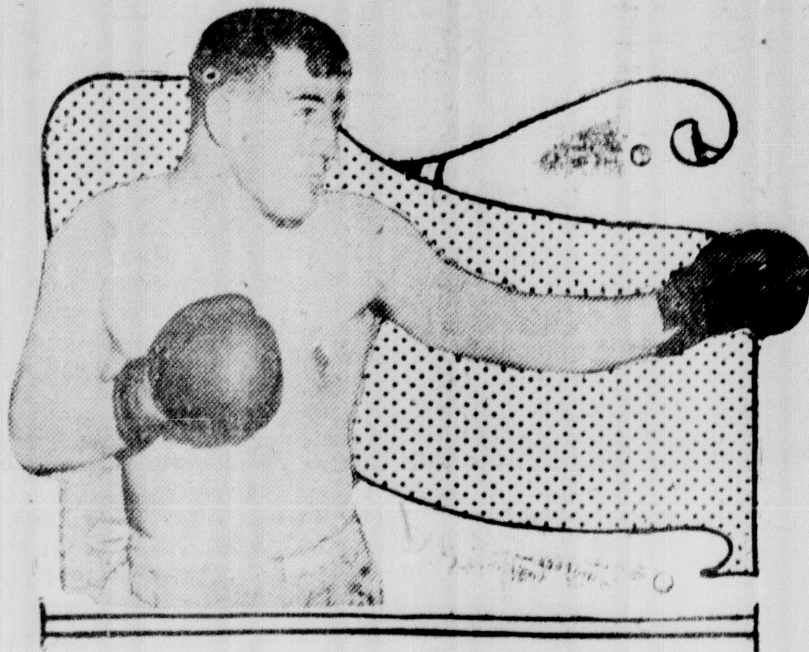

The roar of the crowd, the glamour, the lights and the smell of resin has caused "Sammy" Moffo to decide to again go into the square circle and swap punches with another pugilist. For six months Sammy has been on the side-line watching other fellows mix it up and now wants to give himself another chance.

Every morning for the last month or so the Bristol bear-cat runs six or seven miles along the canal and in the afternoon trains in the back part of the Colonial Theater. The public is invited to watch him between the hours of 1:30 and 2:30 p. m.

The local boy has been in the fighting game for four years and has engaged in seventy-four bouts, winning sixty-four by decisions (either newspaper or referee), three by knockouts. He has lost seven by decisions and never has been knocked out. "Bucky" Boyle with a seven pound advantage, floored the local brawler twice, being the only one to boast of this record.

Looking over Sammy's collection of clippings, the correspondent found that the Bristol boy has met some of

FISH AND GAME ASS'N ARRANGES FOR OUTING

Invitations have been issued by the Bristol Fish and Game Protective Association to members of that organization to attend the annual outing, which will be held at Maple Beach, Saturday afternoon.

The festivities, scheduled to commence at two o'clock, include a variety of marksmanship events, races of all kinds, and "eats."

This annual affair of the local game association, to which members are invited to bring their friends, is always largely attended.

A handicap clay target match, men's and women's rifle matches, bait and fly casting events, and novelty events for men and women, are to be run off. Chairman of the ticket committee, Ralph Ratcliffe, announces that an ample supply of ammunition will be on hand at the Maple Beach tract for the marksmanship events. Prizes, which will be awarded the winners, include many suitable articles.

Adding to the enjoyment of the day will be the serving of refreshments. Those desiring to secure additional tickets may get in touch with the secretary, Mr. Ratcliffe, between now and the date of the outing.

The association has done much in the vicinity of Bristol and likewise throughout Bucks County for the protection of game birds and fish, thus assisting in promoting a healthful outdoor sport.

State News

HARRISBURG, Aug. 13—Records compiled in the Department of Public Instruction show that the consolidation of rural schools in Pennsylvania continues to make rapid progress. There are now 598 approved consolidated schools for which reimbursement for transportation is made to the districts by the State.

During the school year, for which figures are available, 286 consolidated schools increased their general equipment and 16,177 books were added to the libraries of the consolidated schools of the State. Many of these schools enlarged and improved their school grounds and provided better transportation vehicles. New maps were purchased for sixty-two schools and sixty-three purchased flags and flagstaffs.

The curricula in many consolidated schools have been enriched by the addition of music and art supervision and the organizing of orchestras and bands. Physical education is receiving much attention. Many parent-teach associations have been organized in connection with these schools.

The report further shows that approximately 1500 one-teacher schools have been closed and the children are now being transported to consolidated schools. The records also show that during the past year 23,000 children were transported to consolidated schools for which the districts maintaining them will receive reimbursement for transportation from the State.

From July 1, 1927, to July 1, 1928, forty-seven sites were approved by the State Council of Education for new consolidated schools.

The following factors were cited by officials as having done much to accelerate the consolidation of rural schools in Pennsylvania: Reimbursement for transportation by the State; bonus of $200 per year for each closed school; the State assistance in maintenance of transportation vehicles owned by the school districts; the State road building program and modern means of transportation by motor vehicles.

the leading lightweights of the east, among these are Joe Wilton, Joey Hadfield, Emory Cabana, Jesse Goss, Bucky Boyle, Lew Mayrs and Tony Sciorino. Sammy at one time was matched to meet Tony Canzoneri, now wearer of the lightweight crown. The match fell through according to Patsy Moffo then brother-manager of the boxer.

Moffo was going strong at the time and the Bristol followers thought the boy of their fighting heart would sure put it over the New Yorker. Sammy met a tartar in Jesse Goss, the colored fighter from Trenton, and received the worst shellacking of his career. Since then Moffo did not put on the mitts and many said that Sammy had seen his days but here he is making another attempt at the game.

The local boxer is the Tunney-type of a fighter, that is, lacks a knockout punch but his speed allows him to sail into an opponent to slash and cut him to pieces. Moffo is also aggressive.

The present difficulty of the local boy is signing a new manager. Patsy, my brother, is through, said Sammy, as he opened a letter from Detroit from a business manager who wishes to take Sammy over. "I am not sure who my next manager will be, but I am seriously thinking of signing the contract 'Billy' Angelo, of Trenton, has offered me."

The Bristol boy will be on one of the cards at the Arena in September. "Al" Winkler will most likely be his opponent.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 13—(INS)—Thirty-nine automobile drivers' licenses were revoked and nine names added to the official prohibitory list during the past week, the Department of Highways announced today.

Eighteen of the licenses were revoked on charges of intoxication. Virgil L. Graves, of Allentown, was included in that list.

The license held by Russell D. Carter, of Lewistown, was revoked for transporting liquor. Joseph Lesinski, Beaver Falls, lost his license for reckless driving and Elmer Frommnecht, of Erie, lost his for tampering with the engine numbers of an automobile.

He'll Stay on the Job

"Bill" Plankinton Wants
To Win Success
On His Own.

NEW YORK—The boyish chap whose picture appears in the adjoining column is UNIQUE among modern youths. He is the heir to $4,000,000 of the $10,000,000 estate left by his father, the late William Woods Plankinton, Sr., yet he chooses to WORK for his living. True, he quit his $20-a-week job upon learning of the bequest, but it was not preliminary to embarking upon a career of dissipation and high-powered spending. It was so he could make a connection with some newly-organized construction firm where he will have an opportunity to climb up in the world.

For "Bill" Plankinton still has visions of making a fortune in his own name despite the burden of wealth suddenly placed upon his shoulders. In this manner he shyly confided that he expected to get the most "kick" out of life.

"All I'll be at first," he said, his grayish-blue eyes fixed on the skeleton of a tall office building in the mid-Forties. "Is a general 'funky.' But some day I hope to invest in the company."

The young millionaire explained that he preferred to associate himself with a new company run by young men because old-established firms are prone to conservatism in the matter of boosting their employees. They aren't suited for the young man with ideas of his own, for it's too easy to get into an argument.

The boy, who is "Bill" to his friends despite his wealth, hasn't even thought of marriage yet, declaring he is too young and that he wants to "get started" in business before choosing a wife. But he quickly added that he isn't indifferent to a pretty girl; that, in his own good time, he intends to "get around" to the matter.

"But," he said, "when romance does enter my life, I want it to be a lifetime affair."
